 Saturday
 Public invited, Cost: $35.00
 Featuring
 Dr. Gregg Dimmick*

The San Jacinto Battleground Conservancy invites you to a luncheon and "archeological" tour of the San Jacinto Battleground, led by Dr. Gregg Dimmick.

Dr. Gregg Dimmick, a Wharton-based pediatrician and author, has a passion for archeology. His recent focus has been on the Mexican Army's presence in Texas during the Texas Revolution. He is an active member of the Houston Archeological Society, the Texas State Historical Association, and serves as a Director of the Wharton County Museum and San Jacinto Battleground Conservancy.

Dimmick's highly acclaimed and award-winning book, Sea of Mud, focuses on the retreating Mexican Army following the Battle of San Jacinto. Dimmick has participated in archeological excavations across Texas at many of the campsites of the Texan and Mexican armies including: Sea of Mud (El Mar de Lodo), Fannin Battleground, and San Jacinto Battleground. Some of the better artifacts collected from the Sea of Mud are on display at the Alamo and at the Bullock Museum in Austin. He has collaborated on other works and made appearances of the History Channel and the Discovery Channel.

Saturday, March 29: Meet at the Monument Inn at 11:30 for lunch, followed by a tour of the battleground
